MAKING OF SCISSORS .- Though no complexities are involved in the making of scissors, or much skill required, yet the process of manufacture is very interesting. They are forged from good bar steel heated to redness, each blade being cut off with sufficient metal to form the shauk, or that destined to become the cutting part and bow, or that which later on is fashioned into the holding portion. For the bow, the Internative Age says, a small hole is punched and this is afterwards expanded to the required size by hammering it on a conical anvil, after which both shank and bow are filed into a nore perfect shape and the hole bored in the middle for the rivet. The blades are next ground and the handles made smooth and burnished with oil and emery, after which the pairs are filted together and tested as to their easy together and tested as to their easy together.

Picturesque and beautiful route, new and magnificent ears now running daily from Alexandria direct to the gate of the Mansion. Opportunity to visit Christ Church, Marshail House, Braddock House and other places of historic interest in Alexandria.

Picturesque and beautiful of scissors, or much skill required, yet shank and bow are filed into a reference shale and the hole bored in the middle for the rivet. The blades are next ground and the handles made smooth and burnished with oil and emery, after which the pairs are fitted together and tested as to their easy working. They are not yet finished, however. They have to undergo hardening and tempering and be again adnowever. They have to undergo hard-ening and tempering and be again ad-justed, after which they are finally put together again and polished for the third time. In comparing the edges of knives and scissors it will be noticed, of course, that the latter are not in conening and tempering and be again adjusted, after which they are finally put together again and polished for the third time. In comparing the edges of knives and scissors it will be noticed, of course, that the latter are not in any way so sharply ground as the former, and that in cutting scissors crush and bruise more than knives.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR DIAMOND DUST.—The name of carborundum has recently been given to a peculiar manufactured substance intended, on account of the peculiar properties which characterize it when thus used, to take the place of diamond dust and bort in the abrasion of hard substances. Singular to say, the product is in claracter wholly unlike say, the product is in claracter wholly unlike say, the product is in claracter wholly unlike claracter.

which characterize it when thus used, to take the place of diamend dust and bort in the abrasion of hard substances. Singular to say, the product is in character wholly unlike the substances from which it is derived—that is, in composition it is almost pure carbon, in construction pure crystalline, and in hardness it is ten, on Mohr's scale. In view of these qualities, it is, to all intents and purposes, manufactured diamond powder, though in color it is slightly darker. Under the microscope many of the crystals appear of a dark green, some are yellow, while others still are blue, and some completely coloriess. The cost of this material is said to be very moderate.
